"SIXTEEN STRING JACK"—The Pittsburgh Evening Telegraph contains a paragraph in relation to a young gentleman who is pretty well known in Wheeling, having temporarily resided in an institution on East street some time ago, on account of a suspicion that the officers of the law entertained that Jack had been visiting the residences of certain gentlemen in the night season, without the formality of an invitation. It will be seen that Jack still retains a fair share of the same frolic which made him famous when here.

"Jack Condry, better known as 'Curley Jack,' was brought into the Criminal Court this morning for trial on the charge of stealing money and jewelry from the proprietors of the 'Bank' saloon, on Sixth street some weeks ago. When called on to put in his plea he surprised the Court by answering 'guilty,' and under cover of this peaceful announcement, proposed to the Judge as his terms for the further adjudication of the case, that he would restore all of the stolen property in case his sentence was limited to three years. The Court received the plea, but held the conditions under consideration."

LAUNCHED IN LIFE.

Commencement Exercises of the Wheeling Female College, at the Opera House, Last Evening—Graduation of the Class of 1880.

The commencement exercises of the Wheeling Female College took place at the Opera House last evening. The auditorium was filled with a critical and highly cultured audience, friends of the graduates and the institution, while a few who could not obtain seats in the theatre occupied seats in the gallery. There is more animation and picturesque in an audience of the character that gathers on the occasion of college commencements than one sees in any other assemblage. On some faces is pictured the expectancy of friends, on others is seen the anxious interest of relatives, while the general audience employs the time in chatting and taking critical surveys of the stage and their neighbors. The scene is usually brightened by accessories of a floral and decorative nature, which charm the eye and capture the senses, reminding one for a time from the commonplace of a busy life and, perhaps, recalling similar events in their own lives.

That all commencements are the same, that the features of one are always to be found in successive ones, has become an accepted truth. But the exercises of the class of 1880 of the Wheeling Female College last evening was a happy exception. The efforts of the young ladies were marked for a freshness and vigor that seldom pervade the themes of young ladies who bow to commencement audiences. The hackneyed phrase that appears in every commendation in connection with occasions of this nature, "that the young ladies acquitted themselves with credit to their friends and honor to the institution they represent," does not express the meed of praise due the young ladies who graduated last evening; they did more, and this is said without reserving any qualifications.

We cannot go into the detail of the exercises without passing a compliment on the tasteful arrangement of the stage. The floral decorations were beautiful, which, in addition to other accessories employed, made a picture of great beauty and freshness.

Properly at the hour designated on the programme, the Faculty of the College, led by the Hon. C. D. Hubbard, President of the Board of Trustees, appeared on the stage followed by the young ladies of the graduating class. Among the distinguished citizens occupying seats on the stage were, noticed, Secretary of State S. Brady, Prof. W. K. Pendleton, State Superintendent of Public Schools, Rev. W. E. Rippey, Rev. Walter R. Long, Attorney General, Robert White, Rev. C. P. Macken, Prof. C. Harvey, City Superintendent of Schools, Hon. T. H. Logan, H. K. List, Augustus Pollock and J. S. Rhodes.

Rev. W. E. Rippey, of the M. E. Church, opened the exercises with prayer, and after an interlude of music by Vass Orchestra,

MISS JESSIE LINCOLN STOUT, of this city, and the salutatorian, was introduced by President Hubbard. Miss Stout dealt with the beginning, the progress and maturity of objects in life. Her salutation to the audience, her classmates, the faculty, alumni and President Hubbard was couched in language that was marked for the feeling it conveyed.

She wore white Swiss trimmed with striped silk and lace, looped back with lilies of the valley; trimmed skirt, with panier basque.

MISS MAGGIE J. BODLEY, of this city, was seated with her classmates on the stage, but owing to recent illness, she was excused from reading her theme on "Drifts."

Miss Bodley was dressed in white Swiss, panier polonaise, shirred skirt, trimmed with striped satin and lace, looped with lilies of the valley.

MISS SAMSON VIRGINIA FERGUSON, of Carrollton, Alabama, read a theme on "What Next?" Miss Ferguson dealt with the surprises every day brings forth in the scientific world, inquiring what will come next. The application was, that in course of study she with her classmates with constant surprises. The end had now come. What next? They were about to leave the school of theory and enter the school of experience to learn its practical lessons.

Miss Ferguson wore white Swiss, panier polonaise, shirred skirt, trimmed with striped satin and lace, looped with lilies of the valley.

MISS MAGGIE A. BIRKETT, of Triadelphia, W. Va., read an address on "Hard Times." She entered into the causes of the late panic. The important one was extravagance, and she was just enough to read her next a lecture on the sin, while she took off the little vanities of man.

Her costume was white Swiss skirt, cream colored satin panier, trimmed with lace.

MISS ALBINA E. RIPPET, of Triadelphia, W. Va., read a well prepared paper on "Reiteration." Her manner was graceful, and her enunciation clear and distinct. It was a peculiarly happy effort, and abounded in pictures and metaphor.

She was dressed in white Swiss, panier, trimmed with lace; trimmed skirt, shirred with satin.

MISS VIENNA W. DORSEY, of Powhatan, Ohio, made a very pleasing impression on the audience in telling what "Grip, Grip and Gumption" would accomplish in life. Her delivery added greatly to the merit of her performance.

She wore a Princess dress of cream colored lace bunting, trimmed with satin, lace, moss roses and autumn leaves.

MISS IDA MAY HALDEMAN, of West Chester, Pa., and the valedictorian of the class, delivered one of the finest farewell addresses we have ever listened to. It was scholarly in diction, chaste in language, and rich with many happy expressions and tender with thoughts on the occasion. She feelingly referred to the ties that were about to be broken, and was pathetic when she uttered the one sad word of the hour—farewell.

She wore a Princess dress, made of cream colored silk, shirring up the front, cream colored satin, with train of lace.

The young ladies were the recipients of many handsome floral tributes, bestowed in front of them being literally a bed of roses. These liberal testimonials of esteem showed that the young ladies had made many friends in the city.

Those of the graduates who live in distant cities, we are sure will always be remembered kindly by their Wheeling friends, and though parted with with pang of regret, the best wishes of all follow them.

CONFERRING OF DEGREES.

Hon. C. D. Hubbard, President of the Board of Trustees, on behalf of the Board, conferred the degree of Mistress of English Literature on the following young ladies of the class, who had completed the prescribed course of study: Miss Jessie L. Stout, Miss Maggie J. Bodley, Miss Vienna W. Dorsey, Miss Maggie Birkett and Miss Albina E. Rippey.

Also the degree of Baccalaureate Arithmetician on Miss Ida May Haldeaman and Miss Samson Virginia Ferguson.

Gold medals for finishing the prescribed course of study in the musical department were conferred on Miss Ida May Haldeaman and Miss Vienna W. Dorsey.

The honorary degree of Arithmetician was conferred on Miss Mary E. V. Pardee, preceptor of Dickinson Seminary, Williamsport, Pa.

BACCALAUREATE ADDRESS.

Prof. W. K. Pendleton then delivered the Baccalaureate address, the argument of which was that when arrayed with all the benefits of education and culture woman was a queen, and fit to rule the world; and impressed upon the class the importance of the work they had only begun. It was an able address, and we regret that we cannot give an intelligent synopsis of it.

MORE HONORS.

At the conclusion of his address Prof. Pendleton stated that the trustees of the Peabody educational fund, in order to excite emulation in study, had a number of medals of bronze struck off, to be presented to those proficient in studies, and he therefore had the pleasure of presenting the one he held in his hand to Miss Ida May Haldeaman.

On one side of the medal is the medallion head of Peabody, also his name, date of birth and death; on the reverse side is the inscription, "Education, a debt due from the present to future generations," also the name of the recipient. This ended the exercises of the evening, and the audience was dismissed with the benediction by Rev. C. P. Macken, of the Fourth Street M. E. Church.

THE COLLEGE, AND ITS MANAGEMENT.

We have taken pleasure on previous occasions to refer to the able administration of the affairs of the Wheeling Female College, and it affords us a double pleasure at the present time to again commend Miss Taylor, the President of the institution, for the thoroughness and energy with which she has managed the college. Her life has been a constant exercise in the instruction imparted, as evinced in the students. Miss Taylor is a woman of wonderful administrative ability, and to her more than any other is due the success of the college. Her life has been a constant exercise in the instruction imparted, as evinced in the students. GARFIELD AND ARTHUR.

Disorganization of the Union District Blaine Club—The Nominees of the Chicago Convention Embraced and a Garfield-Arthur Club Organized—Commitment to Our Chicago Delegate.

The Union District Blaine Club met at the Atlantic Engine House last night for the purpose of winding up its affairs, and aiding in the organization of a Garfield-Arthur Club. After providing for the indebtedness of the club, and passing a resolution of thanks to the officers, the Union District Blaine Club adjourned sine die.

Upon the demise of the Blaine Club, Mr. Armstrong secured the floor, and after dwelling upon the necessity of organizing a Garfield-Arthur Club, nominated Mr. Wm. Kamp as temporary chairman, Mr. Dave Baird was elected temporary secretary.

After the completion of the temporary organization, Mr. O. K. J. Ellifitz, Dave Baird and W. M. Merriman were appointed to secure a suitable hall for the meetings of the club during the campaign.

The necessity of organizing a drum corps for the purpose of "enthusiasm the boys" was discussed and disposed of by appointing J. W. Armstrong, Dave Baird and Henry Severing a committee to take steps toward the organization of the same.

The following preamble and resolution was read and unanimously adopted: WHEREAS, Believing in maintaining the principles of independence and Republicanism, and ever ready to commend the action of any individual vindicating the above to be it.

Resolved, That the Union district Republicans most earnestly approve of the action of Mr. A. W. Campbell in the Chicago Convention, and trust that the example set by him there may be perpetuated and universally adopted by all the Republicans, municipal, State and National.

On motion the chair was authorized to appoint a committee of three to have the resolution engrossed and present the same to Mr. Campbell, with the well-wishes of the Union District Republicans, upon his return home. J. W. Armstrong, Wm. Kamp and David Nesbitt were appointed said committee.

After a few patriotic remarks by some of the members, which indicated an earnestness to go into the campaign with a vim that means victory, the club adjourned, to meet at the call of the president.

WANTS TO KNOW.

Will you please decide through the columns of this paper a bet which was made between some readers of the INTELLIGENCER. Will it be considered legal at the Presidential election to vote for Garfield, scratch the name of the Vice President, and substitute by inserting the name of the Democratic candidate for the same office?—Ch—

You can legally vote for either candidate, but it would be of no effect, as voting is done for electors and not directly for candidates.

RON, GEORGE O. DAVENPORT.

Action of the Ohio County Bar in the Matter of His Death.

At a meeting of the bar of Ohio county, held at the Court House yesterday, to take appropriate action on the death of George O. Davenport, late a member of the bar, the meeting was called to order by John E. McKennan, who called Judge George E. Boyd to the chair.

On motion J. H. Good and I. F. Jones were chosen Secretaries, and I. F. Jones, J. H. Good and Wm. P. Hubbard were appointed a committee to draft appropriate resolutions.

The preamble adopted on the report of the committee recites that the members of this bar have heard with feelings of deep regret of the death of their brother at the bar, and in this manner express their unfeigned sorrow at the loss of one whose ready mind, marked talents and professional acquirements had secured for him a prominent position, and whose generous impulses and kind deeds made him the personal friend of his fellows at the bar.

We may also, as citizens, express the regret of the community whose confidence in him was manifested by their choice of him as a member of the Legislature and Constitutional Convention, in each of which he rendered good service to his country and to his fellow citizens. We tender to his brother and other friends our sympathy.

The following was recommended and adopted: Resolved, That a committee consisting of the Chairman of this meeting and five others, to be appointed by him, as representatives of the bench and bar of Ohio County, and that we wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days; and that a copy of this preamble and resolutions be presented by the Secretaries of this meeting to each of the Courts of Record sitting in this city, with the request that a copy be forwarded to the family of the deceased.

The following were appointed as the committee to attend the funeral: Judge Thayer Melvin, John Walton, Alfred Rheinboldt, B. B. Dovenor and E. G. Crahan.

THE PHAETON AND DIURNAL.

A Little Race Between these Boats Tuesday.

We learned yesterday morning that the steamer Diurnal and Phaeton had come together at or below New Martinsville, Tuesday afternoon, and a brief but decisive trial of speed had taken place. So when the Phaeton came in yesterday we learned the following particulars of the "fly" between these two fastest boats on the Upper Ohio.

Will Dillon, Jr., who was in command of the Phaeton, and who when his boat reached Beavertown, sighted the Diurnal lying to at New Martinsville. As the Phaeton neared the latter named place the Diurnal backed out, and as she did so Dillon bore a challenge for a race, to which the Diurnal promptly responded, and moved down to Fishing Creek rifle when she lay to awaiting the movements of her little competitor, which soon came alongside and immediately the two boats started, and for two miles kept nearly abreast of each other, but near the end of the second mile the Phaeton spurred forward and led the Diurnal about a length.

Capt. Dillon says this race demonstrates the truth of the assertion he made some time ago, that the Phaeton could beat him blowing but not running.

The Diurnal men complain that a noxious blow off from their boat and they were compelled to stop, but the Dillons, father and son, say, no such thing, they can do the same thing every day in the week.

The Diurnal men claim that the Phaeton is a splendid boat, rivaling if not excelling the Juncos, but he feared it would not bear transportation and that its color was against it.

J. V. McLaune said the strawberry crop was this year a failure to some extent. A committee, consisting of I. C. Hall, Quaker City, H. M. Mille, Norwich, and Frank Miskimen, Newcomerstown, was appointed to award premiums, but their report is too lengthy to justify its publication.
